UNITED STATES OF AMERICA §
ex rel, J. BENJAMIN JOHNSON,
JR., ET AL. §

V. § CIVIL ACTION NO. 9:96 CV 66

SHELL OIL COMPANY, ET AL. §

SECOND ADDENDUM TO CASE MANAGEMENT ORDER

After considering the statements of counsel made at the Status Conference on February 12, 1999 on the issue of indexing document production, the Court hereby revisits its previous Addendum to its Case Management Order signed November 5, 1998 (doc. # 415) with the deletion of the following language:

Any party hereafter producing documents in this case will (1) number each box, and (2) provide to the receiving parties at the time of production for each group of produced documents a written log containing the box number and a general description of the contents of each box and an identification of the departmental source. In addition, any producing party which has used document production codes will provide the receiving party with a key to the production codes. These requirements do not apply to documents indexed in the MDL-1206 depository.

The above language is replaced with:

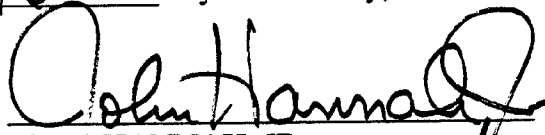

Hereafter, any party producing documents in this case will (1) number each box and bate stamp or otherwise identify each document produced at the time of production. If the producing party has another production code, other than bates stamping, this production code shall suffice. Any producing party which has used document production codes will provide the receiving party with a key to the production codes. These requirements do not apply to documents indexed in the MDL-1206 depository.

It is the Court's intention that each document produced shall be identifiable at the time of its production.

SO ORDERED this 16th day of February, 1999.

JOHN HANNAH, JR.
UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE
